

Garden during the hail storm that started at 1627 and ended at 1631. The largest hail was 0.5 inches and the smaller hail was about 0.3 inches. The hail came at rapid rate making the ground white in about 2 to 3 minutes and striped leaflets on the tomato plant and breaking the terminal growth bud and breaking a few compound leaves. This image was taken during the time it was hailing and the image appears foggy!

The deck was pretty well covered by hail by the end of the short 3 to 4-minute hail period also a few of the young leaves on the trees were broken off.

This image isn't very clear but it shows where there was no grass it was enough to make the ground white.
